About the webinar:

Fragile skin poses a significant challenge across healthcare settings, especially in the elderly and high-risk populations. This interactive webinar will explore the anatomy of fragile skin, clinical grading, dressing selection, and how to implement practical evidence-based interventions. We'll also showcase insights from quality improvement initiatives aimed at enhancing skin and preventing avoidable harm.

Learning objectives:

By attending this webinar, attendees will enhance their knowledge and skills in the following areas:

- Understand the anatomical and physiological basis of skin fragility
- Identify and differentiate between grades of fragile skin
- Learn about quality improvement initiatives to drive better outcomes
- Improve interdisciplinary collaboration across clinical settings
- Apply practical solutions to reduce trauma and preserve skin integrity

Who should attend:

Nurses, Tissue Viability Teams, Allied Health Professionals, Community and Acute settings.
