Surgical technique

Load suture Place the suture firmly into the suture slot on the bottom jaw of the instrument. The free tail should be short, about 2-3 cm (approximately an inch).

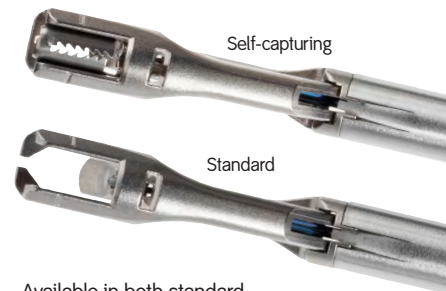

Grasp tissue Close the jaw and insert the working end of the suture passer into the surgical field, open the jaw and position around the target tissue and squeeze the lever to the tissue clamping position (first stop).

Pass and retrieve suture Deploy the needle through the tissue by using the index finger to depress the trigger and continue to squeeze the lever as far as is required to engage a 2 mm diameter loop of suture. The suture will remain engaged in the self-capture (22-4038). Allow the lever to open fully in order to retract the needle and unclamp the tissue.

Remove captured suture Manually grasp the suture. Pull down and proximal (toward the handle) to disengage the suture from the self-capture.

Available in both standard and self-capturing solutions

Two step trigger to grasp tissue and deploy needle
